

Millennium Markers, Homebush Bay, NSW

with EDAW, 1999

Client: Olympic Coordination Authority

Location of the five Markers

The Millennium Parklands form one of the largest public parks in the world that provides Sydney with a collection of world class urban spaces. The concept for the park was developed by Peter Walker and Partners. Within the Parklands, and surrounding the Olympic facilities, are five conical shaped landforms called the Millennium Markers, which are in contrast to the more naturalistic setting of the Parklands. During the Olympic events the Markers will be planted with vibrantly colored flowers with post-Olympic treatments providing an easily maintained landscape. EDAW has been commissioned to provide design development through to construction administration for the Markers. As project manager for this $4.6 million project, my responsibilities were to work with the design team including sub-consultants to lead all aspects of the project including the design development and documentation phases as well as administrative tasks including project coordination, financial tracking and client meetings.

Aerial view of the Southern Marker

Construction photo of the Southern Marker

Plan of the Southern Marker

Section of the Southern Marker